

Mark Pocock
Deputy Comptroller for Supervision System and Analytical Support

Mark Pocock is the Deputy Comptroller for Supervision System and Analytical Support at the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

In this role, Mr. Pocock oversees the administration, development and enhancement of supervisory data, systems, reports and analytics. He also provides guidance and advice to bank supervision and other business units on their use to assure that supervisory systems, data, reports and analytics meet supervision objectives, support business intelligence and risk analysis, and correlate with business unit needs and work processes. He assumed this role in February 2022.

Prior to this position, Mr. Pocock was a Lead Expert in Systemic Risk Identification Support & Specialty Supervision (SyRIS) serving as an advisor to the Deputy Comptroller for special projects. He previously served as Lead Expert for Capital Adequacy and Planning in both SyRIS and Large Bank Supervision, Dodd Frank Act Stress Test Program Manager, and a Senior Financial Economist in the Enterprise Risk Analysis division of Economics. He has also served as a member of the Secretariat for the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision at the Bank for International Settlements and as a Senior Manager at a large consulting firm.

Mr. Pocock holds a bachelor's degree in economics from Brigham Young University and master of arts degree and PhD in economics from the University of Texas at Austin. He is also a commissioned national bank examiner.
