NOTE NEW DATE: OTS to Donate Laptop Computers for City's Youth

Washington, D.C. -- Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) Director John M. Reich will donate more than 200 laptop computers on behalf of OTS next week for young people to use in recreation centers across Washington, D.C.

Washington Mayor Adrian M. Fenty and Clark E. Ray, Director of the city's Department of Parks and Recreation, will join Reich at a news conference at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 28, at the Kennedy Recreation Center at 1401 7th Street, NW.

"As a former community banker, I appreciate the importance of playing a positive role in the community where you work and live," Reich said. "I am gratified that these laptop computers will play a part in shaping the lives of young people in recreation centers across this city."

The Department of Parks and Recreation will distribute the laptops to recreation centers in all eight wards of the city to enhance existing computer labs, or in some cases establish new ones.
